

'My Reincarnation': A lama sighting at Webster this weekend

BY JOE WILLIAMS > Post-Dispatch Film Critic > joewilliams@post-dispatch.com > 314-340-8344 | Posted: Wednesday, February 8, 2012 2:08 am

"My Reincarnation," a documentary about a revered Tibetan Buddhist and his modern European-born son, screens Friday through Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in Moore Auditorium at Webster University.

Filmed over the course of 20 years by Jennifer Fox, the documentary profiles Chogyal Namkhai Norbu, who is considered a reincarnated deity by Tibetan Buddhists, and his son Yeshe, who is raised in Italy and rejects the religious legacy. The only hope for the extended family of exiled Tibetans is an intervention-by the Dalai Lama himself.

"My Reincarnation" is an unprecedented glimpse behind the saffron curtain. Tickets are $6 for the general public. For more information visit the Webster Film Series website.